Linda Hallberg discussed the coming banquet. She contacted several sites and found a minimum requirement of 50 people. This would be very difficult to satisfy. Editor's Note: the following info is obsolete: The Glen Acres Golf & Country Club, 1000 South 112 Street, Seattle, WA was selected. The planned date is February 8, 2003. The banquet hours will extend from 6:00 PM to 10:00 PM. The Glen Acres Golf and Country Club does have a dress code so please dress appropriately. There is a "No host bar just around the corner from the banquet room. The cost was estimated at $35 per person, but this will be reduced depending on the club's subsidy. As was the case last year the club is considering subsidizing the banquet so the expected cost will be no more than $25 per person, and perhaps less.

There was a general discussion concerning the PCMC club activities, the web site, and what the members were interested in doing. The membership was asked to seriously consider what you, the individual member, wants to do, how the club can better work for you, and to consider organizing and conducting club activities. There was a great deal of animated discussion on this subject, much of the discussion was interesting and good ideas were expressed, but no motions were adopted to formalize responsibilities.

Awards:

Brett Paracy won the Split the Pot drawing.
Gary Hallberg won the Member in Attendance drawing.
David Sperry won the BOWEN SCARFF key holder wallet.
Joanne Paoletti won the BOWEN SCARFF Mustang cap.

The business meeting was adjourned at 9:40 PM.

process for turning the wood scraps into charcoal briquettes, and one of his relatives, E.G. Kingsford, helped select the site for Ford's charcoal plant.

- Essentially, wood scraps are heated in ovens that contain little or no air, causing the hydrogen, nitrogen, and oxygen in the wood to escape, leaving behind black, porous charcoal.
- The company town which sprang up around the site was named in Kingsford's honor, and later, Ford Charcoal was renamed the Kingsford Product Company in 1950.
- Kingsford keeps approximately one million tons of sawdust, bark, and excess wood out of local landfills every year by taking it directly from sawmills and pressing it into charcoal briquettes.
- Fortune magazine rated Kingsford Charcoal Briquettes one of the best products made in America.

PACIFIC RACEWAYS JANUARY 25TH

BY BRETT PARACY

New owners & big changes are happening at Pacific Raceways. On Saturday I heard that a Nascar event would be coming to Pacific Raceways this year. So to get ready for that event Pacific Raceways needs to have tire barriers around the track.

On Saturday the 25th a couple of club members volunteered for a tire barrier building party. The weather was cooperative and around 50+ people showed up to build tire barriers for Turn #1. The BMW club made the largest turn out.

We enjoyed a thirty-pizza lunch with Krispy Cream donuts & beverages. I believe the Saturday volunteers managed to complete enough tire barriers to Finish Turn #1.

Steve Sada, of Pacific Raceways announced that there may be another tire barrier building party planned for the middle to end of February.

To show their appreciation for those who helped out, Pacific Raceways is going to put together a special private track day at the end of the season, sometime in Sept/Oct.
